

Dr. Von KleinSmid Addresses Banquet

"The sign of the times is the betrayal of faith," stated Dr. Rufus B. von KleinSmid last night in the Foyer of Town and Gown at the Religious Emphasis banquet, speaking before members of the three major faiths on "The Place of the Religious Council in College Life."

Dr. von KleinSmid continued by saying, "Movements like the conference will prevent youth from falling in the wake of European examples. The value of a program with the scope of the conference is to hold fast the things that are true; to uphold virtue; and to express brotherly love."

The banquet, under the direction of Toastmaster Neil Deasy was opened by the invocation by the Rev. Wendell L. Miller. Herman Taylor, president of the Student Council on Religion, delivered the banquet message and Dr. Carl Sumner Knopf, director of religious activities, gave the benediction.

"first citizen of Los Angeles," spoke on the "Religious Responsibility of Youth." Mr. Scott said, "Youth of today deserve congratulation for bringing this religious movement to the campus."

"When you wake up at night you can shake hands with yourselves," concluded Mr. Scott.

Wallace Frasher, varsity debater, spoke on "Religious Emphasis — Weak." Frasher stated, "Churches must struggle to keep their heads above water because of the flux and change of the world."

"Religious urge is the basic human quality and churches must meet the social changes by emphasizing the need of religion in life."

Musical entertainment was provided by Miss Elaine Gloria Van der Velde, soprano, who was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Grace E. Creighton.

The purpose of the banquet was to present a general discussion on the vital importance of religion in modern colleges. Frasher represented the student point of view, Dr. von KleinSmid described the position of religion in general student life, and Mr. Scott pointed out the place of youth in the modern fields of religion.
